

Platform Architecture Ledger

The customer intelligence API uses read replicas for analytics queries and isolates write paths behind queue workers.

Deployment policy requires canary release, schema compatibility checks, and rollback verification before promotion.

Known risk: the reporting service still depends on a shared Redis namespace used by the operations dashboard.

Recommended fix: split cache namespaces and add contract tests for report export jobs.